The Turtle Who Went to War
Level III Book 19

A Sioux Story
As told by Lavina Perry

This Sioux story tells how once, long ago, the Turtles decided to go on a warpath against the Indians. The Indians had been greedy and had killed too many Turtles to eat, which made the Turtle chief very angry. So, the Turtles went on a warpath and killed the Indian chief.
There once was a large camp of Water Turtles. One day, the chief of the Turtles sent around the pipe to all the friendly tribes—the Grasshoppers, Butterflies, Frogs, Snakes and Rabbits.

The chiefs smoked the pipe. Then they sent their young men to the Turtle chief, who spoke to them. "There are many Indians camped nearby," he said. "Let's go on the warpath and kill their chief." They all said they would go on the warpath.
The warriors walked around the inside of the camp circle and went out the opening to the east.
Then they walked around the outside of the camp
   and started off, carrying their war bonnets and war clothes.
They walked all night.
Just before the sun came up,
   they reached the Indian camp.
The warriors attacked.
The Turtle chief went into the Indian chief’s lodge.
The Turtle took the Indian by the throat and choked him until he was dead.
He bit off the scalp
   and slipped under the dead chief’s bed.
Later that morning,
    the Indians found their dead chief.
A crier went through the camp,
    telling the people to watch out for enemies.
Later, someone moved the chief’s bed
    and saw a spot of fresh earth under it.
Pushing a stick into the earth,
    he felt the Turtle.
Then the Indians knew that the Turtle had killed their chief.
The people wondered what they should do with the Turtle.
"Put him in the fire," said one man.
"No," said another, "we can’t burn him. His shell is too hard. Let’s hang him."
"No, let’s cut off his head," said another.
"No," said a fourth man, "let’s drown him." Everyone thought that was the best way.
The next afternoon, the Indians took the Turtle to a pond.
A crowd of people followed,
    for they wanted to see him killed.
A man was chosen to drown the Turtle.
The man was painted with war paint.
Carrying the Turtle, he waded out to the center of the pond.
The Turtle shook and acted like he was very frightened.
But as the man started to put him into the water,
    the Turtle turned his head and bit him!
The man jumped and fell into the water.
The Turtle drowned the Indian and bit off his scalp.
When the man didn’t come to the top of the water,
the people didn’t know what to do.
They were afraid to go into the water,
so they left.
The Turtle stayed in the pond until night came.
Then he went back to the Indian camp
and hunted until he found the chief’s scalp.
The Turtle was glad that he had taken the two scalps by himself. He started home.
JEROME FOURSTAR
Jerome Fourstar is an Assiniboine Indian who was born and raised on the Fort Peck Indian Reservation in Montana. He attended elementary school in Frazer, Montana, and received his G.E.D. from Glasgow High School. He served in the Montana National Guard and for many years worked as a carpenter and supervisor of electrical, plumbing and construction work. After taking college coursework in bilingual education, he served as a bilingual teacher at Wolf Point (Montana) High School. For the past five years he has taught Indian culture and religion in the Wolf Point public schools. He has served as a cultural and spiritual leader for both on-reservation and urban Indian groups and for Morning Star, Inc., which trains rehabilitated alcoholics. He also taught youth and served as a spiritual and cultural leader at an ecumenical conference of medicine men in Morley, Alberta, and each summer he is director of a youth camp in Billings.
